STUDENT LASALLIAN COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

John Baptist de La Salle was born into a world very different from our i . Rµ iŠ: HØµ Û2:H : Ï iµŠöHØo parents living in Reims, France over 300 years ago . At the age of sixteen, De La Salle was named Canon of the Reims Cathedral, a high-level position in the Church . Though he had to assume the administration of family affairs after his parents died, he completed his theological studies and was ordained a priest on April 9, 1678. Two years later, he received a doctorate in theology . Meanwhile, De La Salle became involved in a project that involved training a group of rough and barely literate men to become teachers in order to establish schools for poor boys .

At that time, few people lived in luxury, and most were extremely poor: peasants in the country and slum dwellers in the towns . Only the wealthy could send their children to school . Moved by the plight of the poor, De La Salle determined to put his talents to use and advanced

e Ceremonial Mace

The Ceremonial Mace is part of Lewis University's institutional academic regalia . Made of hand-turned cherrywood and measuring 36 inches long, the Mace, at its top, features a dual-sided cherry-framed bronze medallion depicting, on one side, the Seal of Lewis University and on the other, a relief of Saint John Baptist de La Salle, Founder of the De La Salle Christian Brothers and Patron Saint of Educators . An engraved platform collar beneath the medallion prominently features 2µ/2µ:µ HÞ Ð HØµ Ûhµ §the Lewis the University: Knowledge, Justice, Wisdom, Fidelity and Association . The cherrywood shaft of the Mace is wrapped with engraved brass banners of the University: Aviation, Science and Technology; Business; Education and Social Sciences; Humanities, Fine Arts and Communications; and Nursing and Health Sciences .

This Mace was designed Ï 2 Š ® Û2:H P:µ® ®P2Þ and the December 2010 Commencement Weekend to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the sponsorship of Lewis University by the De La Salle Christian Brothers .

The Mace is carried by the University Marshal, a member of the Lewis University faculty . The University Marshal leads the faculty procession and also escorts the Platform Party, which consists of the members of the Board of Trustees, the President of the University, members of the faculty, staff, and administration, as well as graduates, alumni and special guests who are participating in the degree ceremony .
